

Avon Meadows also has hidden depths. It's not all about the wildlife you can see, sometimes you need to delve a little deeper. In the pools and ditches there's a whole secret world beneath the waters, where predators like great diving beetle larvae stalk between roots and stems and caddis fly larvae build their camouflaged cases out of bits of twig, sand and leaves.

In a few short years, Avon Meadows Community Wetland has developed into a wonderful place for people and wildlife. Whether you choose to stroll along the river bank, or follow the footpaths through the wetlands, you'll see wildlife wherever you go.

good services, good value

In summer, swifts and swallows greet the summer sun, swooping over the pools and meadows feasting on insects. Lush green reeds hide tiny sedge warblers feeding their young, while jewel-coloured dragonflies dance across the water, pausing to bask on the boardwalks.

In early spring, the meadows are dotted with the pale pink of ladies' smock or cuckoo flower, so called as it blooms with the sound of the returning cuckoo. Orange tip butterflies are one of the first to emerge and rely completely on the nectar of the cuckoo flower for their food.

Winter brings a bleak beauty all of its own. Early bloodshot sunsets bring starlings in their thousands, darkening the skies a little further with their formation flights that twist and turn across the sky, then as one, they plunge together into the reeds to feed and sleep.

Avon Meadows in autumn turns to gold and fire as the reeds dry, ready for harvesting and the hedgerows glow red and purple with juicy berries. Look out for blackbirds and goldfinches gobbling up glistening blackberries and sour sloes, fattening up for the winter ahead.

Wetlands for All

The Wetlands for All Project is funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund, Wychavon District Council, Pershore Town Council and supported by the Friends of Avon Meadows. Since 2013, Wetlands for All has delivered footpath improvements across the meadows, including a new boardwalk made from recycled plastic, new tactile information panels, notice boards and walking guide leaflets. Local volunteers have been involved in every aspect of Wetlands for All, from wildlife surveys, to art workshops and developing a management plan for the future of the meadows. Wetlands for All is helping to make Avon Meadows a place that is rich in wildlife, loved and cared for by the people of Pershore who respect and value it as an accessible space to learn, explore and enjoy.

The Friends of Avon Meadows are a local community volunteer group, dedicated to managing and maintaining Avon Meadows on behalf of their local community. Not only do they carry out many practical tasks such as cutting the reed beds, coppicing small willows and keeping the paths clear and maintained, they also monitor the wildlife of Avon Meadows. This includes regular bird and butterfly surveys, dragonfly counts and surveying the plants that grow on Avon Meadows.

With all this information, the Friends of Avon Meadows are able to monitor the health of the meadows and adjust how the meadows and wetlands are managed to best benefit people and wildlife. The Friends of Avon Meadows work closely with Wychavon District Council and Pershore Town Council to meet their shared aims of access for everyone and wildlife conservation. Things to watch out for Avon Meadows is a wild and wonderful place. Please take care when you visit our nature reserve and follow the Countryside Code. Remember, there are plants that sting and scratch and insects that bite and sting in all wild places.

Flooding
Avon Meadows is part of the natural flood protection scheme for Pershore, it floods so the town doesn't. If Avon Meadows is flooded, please stay safe and avoid it. You can get amazing views of the flooded wetlands from Meadow Walk.

Wildlife
Please help us protect our wildlife. Don't allow your dog to disturb nesting birds and keep well away from swans with cygnets.
